“ My sister Cheryl was one of my absolute heroes in life. So many memories, so many. As kids I spent so much time trying to be as cool and beautiful as she was. Cheryl was highly intelligent and she loved learning almost more than anyone I know. She adored her girls and husband, always wanted the absolute best things for them. She often took care of me as a child - she was always kind and mentoring however she didn't take sass. I am sure her girls can relate to that. Cheryl was a caregiver by nature, loving mother, sister, daughter and wife, while no one is perfect I believe she always tried to do her best.. My beautiful sister started the fight for her life many years ago. She finally won and is no longer suffering. I know she is sitting at the feet of Jesus rejoicing. She was a sincere Christian who loved the lord. I will rest with relief that her suffering is over and she is with Jimmie and Wendi no longer afraid. My heart is heavy for her husband, daughters, grandsons and our brother and sister. I loved her, looked up to her and couldn't image missing out on her beauty and grace in my life. My husband and boys, Casey, Blake and Alex loved her so much as well. PEACE my sweet sister <3

“ I will always treasure our many fb messages that talked about family, christian values, life, sickness, and inevitable death. Cheryl was the strongest woman I have had the honor to know, to be able to talk about things that were important to us in terms of life, our illnesses that we both knew would take us sooner than later. Her faith was so very strong and she was a bold warrior all the way to the end. I have to say this one thing. As horrifying and heartbreaking it had to have been for those taking care of her on a day to day basis, watching her as she got worse and feeling totally helpless at times, I know without a doubt in my heart, that though she couldn't express it toward the end, she and probably saw and spoke with God through her suffering. I believe that and I know that she did also. Her faith was strong and she had told me that she had made her peace with God a long time ago. She is now among God and the angels. She is with people she loved and lost. She is now young, healthy, and smiling and laughing with all the angels and loved ones. I know too, that she will be vigorously watching over her family and you will feel a touch, a brush or a whisper that will reassure you all is well with her now. Cheryl, my dear friend, it has come and you are resting in the perfect peace of God's shadow. All my love to you and I will see you when God is ready for me. Liz
