

Fredia Ann Johnson

October 3, 2023

Fredia Ann Garner Johnson was born in Jacksonville, Texas on May 27, 1950 to Geneva and Fred Garner. She was the oldest and only daughter, with four younger brothers; Kelley, Earl, Jerry, and Richard. She was their protector and champion. Fredia met the love of her life, Roy Johnson, and they were married July 20, 1974. Fredia welcomed Dawn, Roy's daughter, as her very own daughter from the beginning, and when their son Bart was born, their loving family was complete. Fredia loved her family fiercely. She stopped short of nothing to make things right. Her favorite things were visiting with family and friends (going to the casino whenever she could) reading books (especially Stephen King and Dean Koontz, the thicker the better), her music (Tina Turner and Cher). She greatly enjoyed British humor and mysteries, Law and Order, and the ID Channel. However, she especially loved her grandchildren and cherished her time with them. Fredia was no stranger to hard work. Her first job at 12 years old was at the Houston Zoo, Hermann Park as a cotton candy twirler. At 18, she started in the mailroom for Exxon Corporation USA. From there her career with Exxon skyrocketed due to her tenacity and unmatched work ethic. She would be promoted multiple times throughout her career. First to Customer Relations at the Card Center and ultimately to the Aviations Division where she excelled in the claims department clearing their books, a true challenge. She retired with many accolades after more than 35 years service. Fredia always said it was the love, loyalty and faith of her mother's family that made her who she is. She had quick wit, wisdom, and character. She was understated, an “old-soul”; incredibly intelligent, yet humble, and a very best friend to so many. Fredia is survived by her loving husband Roy W. Johnson of Magnolia. Daughter, Dawn and her husband Robert Sarmiento of Huntsville. Son, Bart Johnson and his wife Shannon of Magnolia. Grandson, Robert (Andy) Sarmiento, Granddaughter Shelby Johnson, and Grandson Kelton Johnson.

The condolences of the Addison family and staff of Magnolia Funeral Home go out to her family and friends.
