“ I knew and worked with Jim at Unocal and kept in touch after the merger with Chevron. He was a good friend, teammate and of great character. My prayers to his family. He will be missed.

“ I worked with Jim at various times over the last 15 years. He was a special guy, able to delve into details and see the big picture. I always wished more senior managers were like him. But it wasn't just that, Jim seemed genuinely warm and interested in how others were doing. He seemed to remember everyone's name even if he hadn't seen them in years. He once recognized a project I was working on that I thought would have been of no interest to him, he took the time to praise others - and that is a powerful leadership quality. I regret he did not have more time to enjoy a retirement he richly deserved. My thoughts are with his family, I will remember Jim very fondly.

“ I met Jim when he interviewed me for a post in Shipping/Global Gas and he approved my position which led to 10 great years in California, so I owe him a lot. Such a clever, supportive, funny and genuine man who always made time for others. My condolences to family and friends.

“ Jim was an outstanding leader at Chevron and was a mentor to me for several years. I learned much from his leadership style and have missed his stories and his sly smile as he threw a light verbal jab at someone in the room since we began working from home and subsequently in his retirement. My condolences for his family and friends. Jim will be remembered and tremendously missed by everyone whose lives he positively impacted.

“ My condolences to Jim’s family! I’ve worked with Jim for many years. I remember being Jim’s desktop support person in Southern California when Unocal merged with Chevron. He didn’t like to call me because it meant he couldn’t fix his computer issue, so trust me, he didn’t call often. We talked about Dumont sand dunes and his buggies as he had a picture on his desk and my family spent Thanksgiving’s there riding motorcycles and driving dune buggies, we had a common ground. Through the years ours paths continued to cross. Recently being here in Houston either in the office or on the golf course. A great man that will be greatly missed, but never forgotten!!!

Sincerely,
Dale Buckles

“ My condolences to Jim’s family and friends. I am so sorry to hear the news that Jim has passed, I remember him as a mentor, intellectual and respected colleague, however I also remember his enormous love of life, sense of humor and love of dune buggies. We shared many good times working together.

I wish you all love at this sad time.

“ I have had the opportunity to assist Jim with his various IT Programs from Global Gas, ETC to Global Upstream at Chevron. Jim is a man with integrity, a person who was both Strategic and Tactical in vision, a rare combination amongst the CIO's I have had the opportunity to work with. I pass on my deepest condolences to his family, our thoughts and prayers are with you all.

May his soul rest in peace!!!!

“ I only interacted with Jim for a couple of years when he was the head of Information Technology for one of Chevron's operating companies. I remember him for his passion for the facts and his great leadership. To this day, I remember when he found out I was retiring he approached me and was completely perplexed. He could not understand how someone could leave such great work. At that time, for sure, he truly loved his profession; and he was great at it... Thank you Jim for all you did for me and others your life touched...
