“ Dear kam,
When I think of you , I see the many sides of you. As you grew and throughout all the change. I saw how much you allowed the world to see, and the rest you chose to keep . When you were little , I remember thinking how proud you were. It was in your walk and the air around you. Untouchable. When you were even younger, despite the danger, You would climb the highest equipment in every park, and jump from heights most would scare from. You walked about in such a brave and confident manner. you didn't wait for permission from anyone, or take anyones hand. That was who you were. Yet for those who were gifted with your love were given a whole other side. That vulnerable boy who would take someone's hand. Your mother's, father's, your family, your friends. Kam, I don't know how to move past your loss. All I know is that we can only learn from it. That time here is more precious than ever. In your honor I promise to do what is best for those who are still here and love them fiercely. That is what you would want. And find our smiles once again. I miss you terribly. I carry you everywhere with me . Soon the pain will blossom back to life . A better way to live , in your name.

“ Just the cutest little boy ever. I miss you brother forever and always. You were a ray of light in a tunnel of darkness. The calm to the biggest storms. The quiet to the loudest chaos. I love you so so much.
