“ I'll always miss you Koji. You were always so kind and willing to help people out, even if you didn't really want to. You had your struggles in life, but that never diminished the type of personality and light you had inside you. You were there for some of the best times of my life in Cornerstone and we had so much fun. It was amazing seeing you grow during that time period and help others. I'll always remember you for the good times and promise to carry your spirit. Love you bro ”

“ Koji My Love you came into our lives unexpectedly and a blessing. What I wasn't expecting was for you to leave us unexpectedly as well. You were such a laughter and light in the house. I will miss all the deep conversations we had about how you can be anything you want to be and where life will take you. I know everyone knows you as adventurous and full of laughter which is true but you had the patience of a saint and a heart of an Angel. You were one of the sweetest young boys I have known. Koji the thoughtfulness you had for your friends, strangers and especially for your sister is truly to be admired. Well Koji we know that sweet Emi always looked out for you and would go out of her way to make sure you were taken care of....so now it is your turn and you can watch over and protect her. On a less serious side I guess I will have plenty of fruity pebbles and Nutella that you would sneak down, mix together and run upstairs laughing before I caught you...lol We will miss you dearly and I loved you like a son through the good , bad and sad times. You will be forever in my heart ❤️

“ Dear Koji

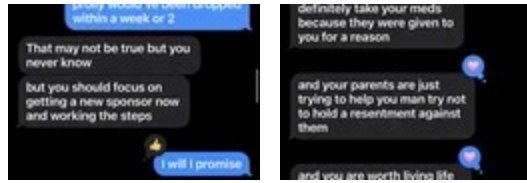

When I walked into PDAP for the first time, recovery was new to me, and it was frightening to know that being involved meant I had to open up my circle, and take advice from those who have went down a similar path. I remember that first meeting, where I sat in silence, reflecting on how alone I felt regardless of the support system, until you introduced yourself to me. I remember when you told me that day I can call or text you in case I needed to talk, that you would always respond, and you always did. Even while battling your own struggles, you showed incredible strength by being there for all of us, and checking up when things went South.

Asking you to be my sponsor felt like a weight getting lifted off my shoulders, and to this day, I am grateful I did, as it led towards a lifetime of memories even throughout our time knowing each other. It feels necessary to detail each and every single time, you were there for us, even when you didn't know it. When anybody struggled with step work, regardless of whether you were their sponsor or not, you would give a hand, and guide us towards the answer, teaching us that finding the answers the hard way, was a step towards recovery. Whenever anybody needed a chance to be heard, you listened, and worked hard to make sure that the environment we were in, was committed to everyone's safety and well-being.

Whenever we were distracted from external factors, you would give us proper coping mechanisms, and play 8-ball or skate with us, to show that the world doesn't revolve around the past, but the present. But life is bigger than recovery, and you showed us how to smile, whether it was a joke that would have us laughing for hours, or a story that we wouldn't miss for the world, or even an affirmation of our accomplishments, which filled our hearts with persistence and motivation.

Every minute I got to spend with you, is a minute that I will always cherish and forever remember, as your presence was loved by numerous not just as a mentor (or the best 8-ball player by far), but as someone we can all call a brother, a brother that didn't give up on us, even when we had already given up on ourselves, a brother that was never afraid to tell us the truth, because he knew we had to hear it, and it would help us down the road more than we ever thought, and a brother that will forever be missed in everyone's heart, whether you knew him for a minute, or a decade.

“ i love you koji, you are my best friend and always will be. you always motivated me to do the things i haven't before and always wanted to, you put me on my feet when i wanted to sit back down you always new how to see the sun shine on a cloudy day, i always loved surrounding myself with you. Koji was caring, relaxed, and he was extremely talented and very strong minded. he always knew how to make peoples days better, i can most definitely say make someone smile no matter what mood they were in he always cared for others first. When ever he came over to hang out he would always be in a positive mood no matter what had happened he just had a great soul, i enjoyed and am grateful of every moment i had with him i wish we had more time i miss you.
