“ Lyndon is a man whose presence always brightened up a room or a conversation... ever a pleasure to be around, and highly competent in his job. We worked together more than thirty years ago, yet my fond memories of him are as fresh as if it were yesterday. May his family take comfort in wonderful memories of his life and the uplifting friendship he brought to so many.

“ I worked with Lyndon for a number of years at Mobil Natural Gas. He was smart, perceptive, and a person of high integrity. If I was missing something in my thinking, or heading down the wrong path in a decision, he would work with me to help me see things in a more realistic light.

While on business in Canada (Calgary), a few times we would take a few extra days to go hiking in the Canadian Rockies. He loved nature, and loved wildlife.

Lyndon always did what he said he would, and always kept his word. He expected other people to do so also.

He taught me a lot about faith, hard work, and integrity. While I haven't spoken to Lyndon in quite a while, (something I now regret), I miss him.
